Finding Her Way

FUN HOME: Centralia College Musical Tackles Hard Subjects With Beautiful Music

By Carrina Stanton
For The Chronicle

"Fun Home" is the first Broadway musical with a lesbian protagonist.

It's also a story about growing up: And a story about families; and a story about fathers and daughters; and a story about trying to figure out just who you are in this world. Beyond the sexuality of the main character, it is a story that almost everyone can relate to.

"Fun Home" will open Friday and play through Feb. 9 in the Wickstrom Studio Theatre on the Centralia College Campus. Adapted from a graphic novel of the same title, "Fun Home" is a coming of age story about a girl named Alison Bechdel (portrayed by Heather Matthews, Shea Bolton and Emily Cole), who is questioning her sexuality. The musical takes us through three stages of her life as she struggles to discover who she is as well as learns some secrets about her childhood, including her father Bruce Bechdel (portrayed by Isaac Wulff) and his own sexual identity. Theater professor Emmy Kreilkamp said she has been hoping to produce "Fun Home" for quite some time because it tells an important story about sexual identity.

"It takes a really serious subject, that of a young woman starting to understand her sexuality, and her father who is questioning his own sexuality, and adds full-on funny numbers and beautiful ballads," Kreilkamp said.

The Centralia College production of "Fun Home" will be guest directed by Andrew Start, an adjunct drama professor at Centralia College who has served as the dialect coach for productions at Centralia College since 2018. Start has also co-directed the summer theater program at Centralia College with Kreilkamp. Start has a history in theatre that goes back to the age of 8, including studying acting at Rutgers and working in theater in New York for 12 years. He said when Kreilkamp proposed the show with him as director, he read through it and instantly felt a connection.

"I'm a father and I'm queer and even though this story is very different from my own, it's a story that's not told a lot," Start said. "When I tell people I have a daughter, they're usually very surprised."

Kreilkamp, who will portray Alison's mother, Helen Bechdel, in "Fun Home", directed "Red" in the fall and will direct "Into the Woods" this spring in Corbet. She said having guest directors fits perfectly into the educational aspect of the Centralia College drama department.

"I think it's good for the students to learn from different directors. Different directors have different styles and different ways of doing things," Kreilkamp said. "It's also been a good experience for me to relive all the steps of acting first-hand."

The subject matter of "Fun Home" presented a few challenges for the production. Start said they did have a few young performers who said 'no' to roles based on their religious beliefs. Playing the adult version of Alison, Matthews, who previously portrayed the same role last year at South Puget Sound Community College, said the role appealed to her because she could really relate to Alison's life.

"I think it's a really important story. I grew up in a really conservative area of the South and I grew up queer and went through a lot of the same stuff Alison goes through," Matthews said. "There's also this theme of being able to live authentically and that each generation can kind of undo the pain of the past that's important as well."

Beyond the issues of sexuality, "Fun Home" is truly a coming of age story, said Cole, who portrays middle school aged Alison and said she sees universal themes of the pain of growing up in the show.

"I can definitely relate to how Alison wants to find out who she is and to find someone she can relate to," Cole said.

Beyond sexuality, "Fun Home" is also a story about family, Matthews noted.

"I think everybody goes through a period of understanding their parents better when they become an adult," Matthews said. "I think it's really universal, no matter what your sexuality, that nobody really knows who their parents are until they grow up."

The Wickstrom Studio Theatre was chosen for Centralia College's "Fun Home" because of the more intimate feel of the space, Kreilkamp said. She noted that musicals are usually staged in Corbet, as "Into the Woods" will be in the spring, but she wanted the audience to feel connected to the characters in the smaller space with "Fun Home." Start said he feels audience members will love the development of each of the characters in the small cast and will probably find someone in the show with which they can relate.

"The story is well crafted, the songs are at times absolutely beautiful and at times really fun and the character arc is really powerful," Start said of the show.

"Fun Home" contains strong language, sexual situations and themes of self-harm of which parents of young theatre-goers should be aware.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I paid $5,000 for a seven-day cruise with my grandkids. All I asked was for them to pack a carry-on and a backpack. My granddaughter and son are having a problem with it. I tried explaining that I'm handicapped and do not want to check a large bag for her because it's a convenience issue. There's laundry service onboard the ship.

When I went to help her pack, my son said I was being unreasonable, and is now threatening to cancel our time with our grandchildren! My husband and I are heartbroken. He ordered us to leave his home and said we were being ridiculous! I don't know what to think.

Am I being unreasonable? We never told them how much we have spent. We just explained that a checked bag would cause us more stress. We also rented a compact car for after our cruise to take the grands, who are 15 and 16, to the mall and a theme park. We don't understand the big deal. — CRUISER GRANDMA

DEAR CRUISER: Your letter proves the truth of the adage "no good deed goes unpunished." To say your son overreacted would be an understatement.

As hosts, you and your husband have the right to issue some guidelines. Inexperienced travelers are often tempted to overpack, and that appears to be true here. If you haven't raised the subject with your son of the cost of the cruise and your worry about hauling around large pieces of luggage in the small rented car, you should. At least then he will understand why you have given "the grands" a limit. If they want to bring larger bags, the kids should be responsible for paying whatever additional cost there might be. At 15 and 16, both should also be able to lug around their own suitcases. It's a teaching opportunity!

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine had a baby several months ago. She behaves like she's the first and only woman ever to have given birth. It has consumed her to the point that she sends me at least half a dozen photos a day. When I try to shift the conversation to other things, she invariably brings the topic back to her baby. She left my wedding early without saying goodbye (she was in the wedding party!) to go be with her baby.

I wonder if giving her a subtle reality check would be helpful, or if it would destroy our friendship. I'd love for it to continue, but it seems like a one-way street. — FRUSTRATED FRIEND

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Before giving your friend a reality check, I suggest giving yourself one. Your friend doesn't talk about anything else but the baby because nothing else is as important to her. By sending you those pictures, she isn't trying to annoy you. She's trying to include you in watching her precious little one develop. Because this bothers you to the extent that you would write to me about it, take a step back for a while rather than say anything to her that you may later regret.

DEAR ABBY: Our 24-year-old grandson "Raffy," a college grad from a respected technical institution, couldn't find a job for a year after graduation. He has been living with us for more than six months without paying rent because we wanted to help him get on his feet. Currently, his only responsibility is helping somewhat after dinner. He now has a good job.

I should mention that Raffy tends to be narcissistic. He frequently wears his baseball hat to meals, even though I have asked him not to. He can also be difficult to deal with, attacking me when there's a difference of opinion or if he's angry about something.

We live in a three-bedroom condo. What rules are legitimate for me to require? Can I ask him to keep his room straight and take his hat off at meals or when going out for dinner? How much room and board should we ask for?

We have frequent guests — family, our friends, his friends — because we live close to the beach in Florida. Space gets to be a big issue, and he refuses to allow visiting cousins to sleep in his room, even though there are two double beds. I welcome your input, Abby. — OUT OF CONTROL IN FLORIDA

DEAR OUT OF CONTROL: You seem to have forgotten that the condo Raffy lives in belongs to you. Because it is your home, and he has been living rent-free, you should be making the rules. It's time to sit him down and tell him together that if he wants to continue living there, he will:

1. Keep his room neat at all times.
2. Remove his hat during the meals he shares with you.
3. Allow the visiting cousins to use the extra bed in "his" room — which is really your guest room.
4. I hesitate to suggest you ask him for money because if you turn the arrangement into a business deal, you may lose leverage. But I do think you should set a deadline for your gainfully employed (but difficult) grandson to leave. With the money he has been socking away on rent, he should be able to accumulate enough to afford a place of his own.

DEAR ABBY: As kids, we were taught not to kiss on the mouth (unless a spouse or romantic partner). We never kissed our children on the mouth and felt disgusted when we witnessed it.

We see it happen all the time now, especially on TV. It never happened in the '50s and '60s. Is my family wrong? — HOLDING BACK IN HAMILTON, OHIO

DEAR HOLDING BACK: It's a matter of personal preference and upbringing. Giving a family member a peck on the lips is neither right nor wrong, and I have certainly never considered a parent or sibling showing affection in this way to be shocking or disgusting. Readers, what do you think?

DEAR ABBY: I am trying hard to let go of my paralyzing fear of driving, which has prevented me from getting a license. I am not sure why I get so nervous and afraid when I get behind the wheel. I really need a car to get my family and myself around. I just wish I knew what was causing this. Could you please help me figure it out? — FEAR OF DRIVING

DEAR F.O.D.: Gladly. The quickest way to get to the bottom of what's causing your fear of driving would be to discuss it with a licensed mental health professional — if possible, one who specializes in treating patients with phobias. Your physician or your health insurance company should be able to refer you to someone who is qualified.

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago, my wife and I invited another couple over for dinner. The husband was on his phone the entire time, showing us YouTube videos he apparently thought were interesting. After dinner, he lamented that he had run out of data and wanted us to provide our Wi-Fi password so he could continue watching his videos. I begrudgingly gave him access, but was really irked by it. Isn't it rude for a dinner guest to ask to use your Wi-Fi? — NOT SO INTERESTED

DEAR NOT SO INTERESTED: It was not rude to ask for your Wi-Fi password. In some circles, it's normal. What WAS rude was for one guest to monopolize the conversation the way that dinner guest did. I'll bet it will be a long time before you invite that couple again.

The end is near

'Homeland' gears up for its final mission

By Francis Babin
TV Media

Audiences and critics alike often complain about the state of the film industry and its heavy reliance on remakes, but no one seems to bat an eye at the same situation happening in the world of television. Perhaps it is because there is just so much original content on the small screen and streaming services (more than 500 original series in 2019 alone) that they just get lost in the shuffle. Nevertheless, some of the most popular and well-received hits of the last couple of decades have been remakes of foreign series.

Furthermore, many of these imports, such as HBO's "Euphoria" and "In Treatment," as well as the award-winning spy drama "Homeland," have come from Israel. Why does the small desert nation produce so many programs that attract western audiences? Nobody really knows, but while we stew on that question, you can catch the globe-trotting action of the eighth and final season of Showtime's "Homeland" when it returns after a two-year hiatus on Sunday, Feb. 9.

Based on the Israeli series "Prisoners of War," "Homeland" took the world by storm when it premiered in 2011. The Showtime drama was immediately an immense success with its gripping and compelling storyline of Nicholas Brody (Damian Lewis, "Billions"), a U.S. Marine sergeant who was missing in action but returns to his home after years in captivity. His sudden return sets off alarm bells for Central Intelligence Agency operations officer Carrie Mathison (Claire Danes, "A Kid Like Jake," 2018), who tries to convince her mentor, Saul Berenson (Mandy Patinkin, "Life Itself," 2018), and colleagues of an impending attack. To complicate matters, Carrie has bipolar disorder, making her an unreliable narrator.

Carrie, Saul and the show itself have come a long way since that first season. After wrapping up the Brody arc, the series switched gears to tackle a multitude of real-world topics like botched drone strikes, jihadi attacks on Europe, the election of a female president and other hot-button issues. According to Showtime, the final season continues exploring current political situations and heads back to the Middle East.

Nimrat Kaur in "Homeland"

As Season 8 opens, Carrie is still recovering after months of brutal confinement in a Russian gulag, while Saul is now the national security advisor to newly elected President Warner (Beau Bridges, "Messiah"). Looking to end the "forever war" in Afghanistan, the new, ambitious president sends Saul to the Middle East in order to negotiate with the Taliban.

Needing help in the hostile territory, Saul, against everybody's advice, reaches out to Carrie for help one last time. She has extensive experience in the region and still has numerous contacts and allies, including Tasneem Qureshi (Nimrat Kaur, "Wayward Pines"), a member of Pakistan's Inter-Services Intelligence. Though, with a fragmented memory and her loyalty in question, it is uncertain how much assistance she will be able to provide.

While promoting the final season at the Television Critics Association media tour panel, executive producer and showrunner Alex Gansa ("24") said the series is going back to its roots as opposed to mirroring the political situation in Washington, D.C., like the last two seasons. He added that the final season looks to echo the first one and wrap up many loose ends from the fourth season, rewarding longtime fans who never got answers to their burning questions. It will focus on the relationship between Carrie and her longtime, on-again, off-again friend, foil and boss, Saul. The relationship between mentor and protege has always been the heart of series, and in the final episodes it will finally come to a head. The subject matter that "Homeland" has dealt with for nearly a decade can never be wrapped up neatly, but the storyline between master and pupil can be properly resolved.

At the same TCA event, Gansa explained that the long delay between seasons was due to the fact that they want to go out proudly and on a high note. Beyond that, filming in multiple countries is no easy feat and takes a bit of time. In addition to the logistical challenges, crafting a graceful ending for "Homeland" has proven to be quite difficult.

While "Homeland" is still very popular and garners great ratings for Showtime, many television viewers have forgotten just how much of an impact the series had when it premiered. Much like "Game of Thrones" or AMC's "Breaking Bad," talk of the Claire Danes drama was inescapable and completely dominated the culture. Like the aforementioned, its success led to not only a slew of awards and praise, but also dozens of poorly made copycats popping up in quick session, only to be quickly rejected by the general public in what many entertainment pundits have dubbed the "the Homeland effect."

Even though "Homeland" has not made many appearances on the countless recent "best of the decade" lists, the landmark series is undeniably one of the more important ones of the 2010s, with its rich storytelling and captivating take on our current geopolitical situation. On Sunday, Feb. 9, witness the end of an era as one of the most influential and relevant shows of the 2010s returns after a two-year absence for its eighth and final season on Showtime.

A scene from "Warrior"

By Jessica Gosse
TV Media

"Warrior" (2011)

Tom Hardy ("Taboo") and Joel Edgerton ("Boy Erased," 2018) star as brothers Tommy and Brendan Conlon in this drama streaming Wednesday, Feb. 5. Nick Nolte ("Graves") plays their father, Paddy, a recovering alcoholic whose drinking was the main contributor to the boys' traumatic childhood. As adults, the brothers are estranged, and each is struggling with major challenges. Tommy joined the Marines and became a war hero, but never felt heroic. He carries the weight of the world on his shoulders and struggles to build a life for himself. Brendan married his high school sweetheart, Tess (Jennifer Morrison, "Once Upon a Time"), and became a teacher. He's under significant financial stress, and has already mortgaged his house in an effort to pay the bills. Both men turn to mixed martial arts (MMA) to bring in some extra cash, and the more opponents they beat, the closer they come to facing one another in the ring. It's a heartbreaking story of love and struggle, one that will stick with you when the credits roll.

"Angel of Mine" (2019)

Noomi Rapace ("Tom Clancy's Jack Ryan") and Luke Evans ("The Alienist") star in this intense film that starts streaming Thursday, Feb. 6. Lizzie (Rapace) and Mike (Evans) are overjoyed when their second child, a baby girl, is born, and utterly devastated when they lose her. Their marriage falls apart, as many do after the loss of a child, and Lizzie struggles to keep her life together and effectively coparent their son. When she sees a young girl who reminds her of the child she lost, she begins to think that the girl could, in fact, be the daughter she lost. The thought consumes her, and she's driven to the brink of madness as she tries to fight her impulses. Yvonne Strahovski ("The Handmaid's Tale"), Rob Collins ("Glitch") and Richard Roxburgh ("Catherine the Great") also star.

"Disaster Movie" (2008)

This silly spoof film is available for streaming starting Thursday, Feb. 6. A young Matt Lanter ("Timeless") stars as Will, who dreams that the world will end on Aug. 29, 2008. Though he dismisses the dream at first, he's forced to admit it could be prophetic when a meteor shower pelts the earth during his birthday party that night. As one calamity after another befalls Will and his friends, every disaster movie trope you can think of is parodied. Vanessa Lachey ("Dads"), Gary "G. Thang" Johnson ("Grown Folks"), Nicole Parker ("Wacky Races"), Ike Barinholtz ("The Mindy Project"), Kim Kardashian West ("Keeping Up With the Kardashians") and even Carmen Electra ("Scary Movie," 2000) star in this ridiculous film that will remind you of every disaster flick you've ever watched.

Megan Mullally, Debra Messing, Eric McCormack and Sean Hayes star in "Will & Grace"

BINGE THIS

"Will & Grace"

There are many extremely popular New York City-based sitcoms, but few were as groundbreaking and beloved as the critically acclaimed series "Will & Grace." The series focuses on the two eponymous characters: Grace Adler (Debra Messing, "Smash") is a neurotic and emotional interior designer, who is balanced out perfectly by her gay best friend and roommate, Will Truman (Eric McCormack, "Travelers"), a level-headed lawyer. The two are joined by their friends Karen Walker (Megan Mullally, "Childrens Hospital"), Grace's rich, alcoholic assistant, and Jack McFarland (Sean Hayes, "Sean Saves the World"), a flamboyantly gay actor, as they face the ups and downs of life, from various romantic relationships to dealing with work, family, friends and stereotypes. This hilarious series is known for having shone a positive light on the LGBT community in the early aughts and for using comedy to touch on difficult, topical themes. Eleven years after its 2006 finale, the cast reunited to urge the American public to vote, and that video resulted in the series being picked up for a four-season reboot. All eight original seasons of "Will & Grace" are available to binge now.

MacGyver

The Green Mile

AMC 2:10 p.m.

Tom Hanks stars as a death-row prison guard who develops a relationship with a simple-minded inmate with incredible powers in this drama. After a series of seemingly miraculous incidents involving the inmate, the guards wonder if he's actually guilty.

Three Billboards Outside Ebbing, Missouri

FX 5:30 p.m.

Wanting to draw attention to the unsolved rape and murder of her daughter, a grieving mother (Frances McDormand) rents three abandoned billboards demanding progress in the case. This surprise hit black comedy swept awards shows in 2017.

Tom Hanks in a scene from "The Green Mile"

Say Yes to the Dress

TLC 8:00 p.m.

Randy Fenoli hosts a new season of this popular reality bridal series. Randy and his team continue to seek out lucky brides-to-be from each state, surprising them with the dress of their dreams and a ticket to New York City for a wedding in Central Park.

Saturday Night Live

KING 8:30 p.m.

Catch a new episode of this long-running live sketch comedy series guest hosted by RuPaul. From pop culture to politics, nothing is safe from these infamously hilarious comedians. Justin Bieber is featured as a musical guest.

Chris Hemsworth, Jesse Williams, Anna Hutchinson, Fran Kranz and Kristen Connolly in "The Cabin in the Woods"

David Giuntoli and Silas Weir Mitchell star in "Grimm"

By Jessica Gosse
TV Media

"Honey Boy" (2019)

Shia LaBeouf ("Fury," 2014) stars in this drama that he wrote and based on his own life story, and you can stream it starting Friday, Feb. 7. "Honey Boy" follows child actor Otis Lort — portrayed at age 12 by Noah Jupe ("A Quiet Place," 2018) and at age 22 by Lucas Hedges ("Lady Bird," 2017) — as he navigates a difficult childhood and early adulthood. Life as a child star is hard enough on Otis, and his father, James (LaBeouf), a former rodeo clown and felon, doesn't make things any easier. The pressures of stardom lead to a complicated and unhealthy relationship between father and son that follows Otis all the way into his adult life, resulting in alcoholism and mental-health struggles.

"Tyler Perry's a Madea Family Funeral" (2019)

On Sunday, Feb. 2, you can watch the newest addition Tyler Perry's Madea film franchise. In this installment, an elaborate surprise anniversary party turns into a nightmare when some family members are caught in compromising positions. When a sudden death occurs, the gathering turns into a much more somber affair. Madea (Tyler Perry, "Vice," 2018) is asked to plan the funeral services, and between the creepy undertaker at the funeral home and a casket that just won't stay shut, the planning takes a turn for the weird. As guests gather to pay their respects to the deceased, some surprising attendees cause a stir amongst the family, leaving Madea to struggle to keep the mournful affair together. When secrets begin to leak and truths are spoken aloud, the whole family is affected, and many will be changed forever.

"The Cabin in the Woods" (2012)

On Monday, Feb. 3, this hilarious comedy-horror film from creator Joss Whedon joins Prime. Every horror film cliche comes to life as five friends — Dana (Kristen Connolly, "Zoo"), Curt (Chris Hemsworth, "Avengers: Endgame," 2019), Jules (Anna Hutchinson, "Anger Management"), Marty (Fran Kranz, "Dollhouse") and Holden (Jesse Williams, "Grey's Anatomy") — head to an isolated cabin for a weekend away. While exploring the cabin, Dana discovers a diary from a family that used to live there, and when she reads a Latin sentence aloud, she accidentally raises a family of redneck zombies from the dead. The friends fight to survive as they are attacked and tortured by the zombies, but there is so much more going on than they realize.

BINGE THIS

"Grimm"

In this supernatural drama, available in full on Prime, Detective Nick Burkhardt (David Giuntoli, "A Million Little Things") lives an average life in Portland, Oregon, with his girlfriend, Juliette (Elizabeth Tulloch, "Supergirl"). But when he begins having visions of normal people momentarily turning into monsters, his life changes. After a visit to his only living relative, he discovers a shocking truth: he is the latest in a long line of "Grimms," descendants of the Brothers Grimm who have the ability to see creatures he has only heard about in fairytales. Now he must maintain the balance as the creatures live among humans. His two worlds quickly overlap as his police cases begin to involve more and more of these creatures. Unable to talk to Juliette or his work partner, Hank (Russell Hornsby, "Proven Innocent"), without sounding insane, he befriends a reformed werewolf named Monroe (Silas Weir Mitchell, "Prison Break"), who reluctantly becomes his confidant. Follow Nick as he faces all manner of beasts that will change everything you thought you knew about fairytales in all six seasons of this drama, available now.

Chicago Med

KING 8:00 p.m.

In this medical drama Dr. Manning (Torrey DeVitto) and Dr. Halstead (Nick Gehlfuss) struggle to find a balance between their personal and professional lives as they work to save lives in Chicago's busiest ER. Brian Tee and Yaya DaCosta also star.

Modern Family

KOMO 9:00 p.m.

The Pritchett-Dunphy-Tuckers take one last family trip in a new episode of this comedy. The closet industry is recognizing Jay (Ed O'Neill) with a lifetime achievement award, so the whole clan packs up and heads to Paris, France. Jon Polito guest stars.

"Modern Family" star, Ed O'Neill

Lego Masters

KCPQ 9:00 p.m.

The entire family can get inspired by this new competition series, hosted by Will Arnett. Two teams of Lego masters are challenged to build over-the-top creations that can withstand anything, but only one can make it into the final round.

The Soup

E! 10:00 p.m.

Brazilian comedian and actress, Jade Catta-Preta, revives this comedy clip show that was canceled back in 2015. Previously hosted by Joel McHale, Jade promises to bring a fresh bowl of laughs to this pop-culture poking revival.

Connor Jessup and Emilia Jones in "Locke & Key"

By Jessica Gosse
TV Media

"Locke & Key"

Connor Jessup ("Falling Skies"), Emilia Jones ("Utopia") and Jackson Robert Scott ("The Prodigy," 2019) star as the three Locke siblings — Tyler, Kinsey and Bode — in this new series premiering Friday, Feb. 7. When their father is brutally murdered, the children move to Massachusetts with their mother, Nina (Darby Stanchfield, "Scandal"), and into her family home, Keyhouse. Once there, they discover the house is filled with magical keys that have an unknown connection to their father's death. As they explore the magic of the different keys, a vicious demon is released that wants the power of the keys for itself. This series is based on the popular graphic novel series created by Joe Hill, and you won't want to miss the thrills it has to offer.

"Horse Girl" (2020)

Some comedy powerhouses come together for this supremely unsettling thriller that premieres Thursday, Feb. 7. "Community" and "Glow" star Alison Brie co-wrote the screenplay with director and producer Jeff Baena ("The Little Hours," 2017), and she also stars in the film. Sarah (Brie) works at a craft store and loves horses. She lives a very simple life, and is content with bouncing from her job, Zumba class and nightly crime shows. When a coworker (played by beloved "Saturday Night Live" veteran Molly Shannon) gives Sarah a birthday present, she is inspired to delve into her family history, which ultimately leads her down a twisted and frightening path. She discovers that her grandmother spiraled into insanity before she hit middle age, and as her own vivid dreams begin to bleed into her waking hours, she starts to worry that she is losing her mind. Or maybe she was abducted by aliens. Paul Reiser ("Mad About You") plays Sarah's father, while Debby Ryan ("Insatiable"), Jay Duplass ("Transparent"), Robin Tunney ("The Mentalist"), Mathew Gray Gubler ("Criminal Minds") and John Reynolds ("Four Weddings and a Funeral") round out the cast. It's a strong, compelling film that will keep you guessing, and Brie is electric in the role of Sarah. Don't miss this Sundance film when it premieres this week.

"My Holo Love"

This futuristic Korean drama makes its debut on Friday, Feb. 7, on Netflix. "My Holo Love" follows Han So-yeon (Ko Sung-hee, "Ms. Ma. Nemesis"), a woman who has become a recluse due to a face blindness disorder. Her life suddenly changes when she begins to use an artificial intelligence program called Holo, a human-like hologram. As Han So-yeon interacts with Holo, growing more and more attached to the AI, its human counterpart and creator Go Nan-do (Yoon Hyun-min, "Witch's Court") begins to fall in love with her. But while Holo looks exactly like Go Nan-do, their personalities couldn't be more different. Holo is warm and kind and everything Go Nan-do is not. Can he find a way to make Han So-yeon love him? Find out when "My Holo Love" premieres.

"Dragons: Rescue Riders" Season 2

The second season of this children's show premieres Thursday, Feb. 7, and it features even more exciting adventures. The "How to Train Your Dragon" franchise has been a big hit — all three of the movies have been nominated for Oscars in the "Best Animated Feature Film of the Year" category, and those films have spawned two kids' shows, six short films, some theme parks and even a couple of live arena shows. The new season of this adorable pre-schooler series follows twins Dak and Leyla, who were raised by dragons. Because of their unusual upbringing, they developed the ability to communicate with the majestic beasts, and together with their dragon friends, they rescue people and dragons alike, racing to the aid of anyone in need. You (and your preschooler) can watch the second season this week.

hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Is it true that Lisa Kudrow was supposed to be in "Frasier"?

A: Not only that, she actually was a part of the cast, at least for a few days.

Lisa Kudrow, now known probably forever as lovably dim Phoebe on "Friends," actually had the gig – she'd beaten out the competition and was officially part of the cast of what was expected to be a surefire hit (and, of course, it was). She'd been cast as Roz, Frasier Crane's (Kelsey Grammer, "Cheers") forceful radio producer.

The problem was that she couldn't quite nail the "forceful" thing, according to the show's creator.

"What Jimmy [that's pilot director and TV legend James Burrows to most of us] noticed was that Kelsey was pulling back in scenes with her because if he went all out like he usually did, he completely overpowered her," creator and writer Peter Casey said. "This was a big problem. We didn't want the star of the show to have to compensate like that in every scene with one of the regulars, so with great regret we called Lisa and told her we were going to have to recast the part."

They gave it to Peri Gilpin, whom Kudrow had beaten out in auditions. Gilpin played the role much more to their liking, and fans and critics agreed – Gilpin would be nominated for stacks of awards for her performance in the role, which became more central to the plot as the series progressed.

Kudrow opened up about the experience in a commencement speech at her alma mater, Vassar College, and said she was gutted after losing the role. She was still a struggling young actress at the time, and she'd been certain "Frasier" would be her "shot."

She kept grinding, though, going to auditions and taking work where it came, until she landed a role on another new sitcom being directed by Burrows, "Friends."

Q: Is Robert Downey Jr. making another Sherlock Holmes movie?

A: I assume you're asking because you want one, and so you're in luck. Reports say that a third movie is in the works, with Downey set to return as the legendary sleuth and Jude Law as his almost-as-legendary sidekick, Dr. Watson. The current plan is to release it in late 2021.

The only other thing that we know almost for sure (all these things are subject to change until shooting begins sometime this year) is that Guy Ritchie will no longer be in the director's chair. He's been replaced by Dexter Fletcher, who is very much the British film "it boy" today that Ritchie was when he helmed the first Downey-as-Sherlock film in 2009.

After that, it's all just rumors, though there are plenty. Most notably, WeGotThisCovered.com reported a hot tip back in December that Jared Harris would return as Moriarty.
